Koh Samui is the gateway to over 80 islands in the Gulf of Siam. Most are uninhabited and make up part of the Ang Thong National Marine Park. All are within a 90 minute speedboat ride from Koh Samui. From mid-February to the end of October the water is warm and visibility averages 15 - 30 m. Dense schools of tropical fish glide through the shallow coral reefs (20 m or less). Giant groupers, curious butterfly, parrot fish, solitary cownose and hawksbills are all found here. Black coral abounds, as do yellow, pink and red sea fans. There is also an astonishing variety of hard corals. Huge, but harmless and friendly whale sharks are well-known visitors at the favourite deeper diversites (20 to 35 m). On the boat rides to and from the islands keep a sharp eye out for playful dolphins and whales.
